Tables (iii) INTRODUCTION. The occupation of a millwright differs from that of almost all other tradesmen and mechanics, in that he is compelled to accommodate his work to a greater variety of circnmstances, conditions, and contingencies. For instance, a millwright is employed to build two saw-mills, one is to be in or near a city, convenient to foundries and machine-shops, where a great variety of waterwheels, and all the other machinery required for its construction can be obtained cheaply and in abundance. But the water power and site are valuable here, and he must select the water wheels, and adapt every part to do the required amount of work with the least possible waste of water and room, and all the machinery and many of the fixtures will be of iron. The other saw-mill is to be built back in the interior of the wilderness where...
